1

Virgin River Gorge

The Virgin River Gorge, located between St. George, Utah, and Beaver Dam, Arizona, is a long canyon carved out by the Virgin River in northwest Arizona.[1] The Virgin River rises on the Colorado Plateau and created the topography of both Zion National Park and the Virgin River Gorge. The Gorge connects the southwestern rim of the Colorado Plateau and the northeastern part of the Mojave Desert.

2

Zion Canyon Visitor Center

Located near the South Entrance of the park, the Zion Canyon Visitor Center is an excellent place to begin your exploration of Zion Canyon.
Please note it is a 2 hours 30 minute drive from Las Vegas

3

Zion National Park

Discover the natural grandeur of Zion as you admire high plateaus and a maze of narrow, deep, sandstone canyons with striking rock towers. Kolob Arch, the world's largest arch, is just one of many beautiful structures that await you on your adventure.

4

Bryce Canyon Scenic Drive

Bryce Canyon showcases the stunning geology of southern Utah, a red-rock wonderland created by wind, water, and snow.Among the nation’s most beloved (and photographed) parks, the park is less than 40 miles as the crow flies from another natural gem: Zion National Park.It’s a natural amphitheater carved into the eastern flank of the Paunsaugunt Plateau by millions of years of wind and water erosion.By far the park’s most popular activity is walking all, or part, of the 11-mile Rim Trail between Fairyland Point and Bryce Point. Offering panoramic views of the kaleidoscopic topography, the trail can be accessed from several places along the rim, including Sunrise Point and Sunset Point.

5

Rainbow Point

Get to know this 1.3-mile loop trail near Bryce, Utah. Generally considered an easy route, it takes an average of 29 min to complete. This is a very popular area for hiking and walking, so you'll likely encounter other people while exploring

6
